

CONSULTING. COACHING. TRAINING.

Individual, Couples or Family Personal Safety

We live in very challenging times. Personal safety is not something any of us should take for granted. Are there times when you feel a sense of fear or anticipation – wondering if you or your loved ones are in a position that might present a risk to personal safety?

We can help you address such concerns.

Personal Security Awareness and Preparedness (PSAP)

Initial consultation to determine if our services make sense for your situation. (Free)

Following the free consultation, you are under no obligation. If you like what you hear and you think our consultants can help you, the next step would be to engage with us for a documented review of our discussion along with a comprehensive list of recommendations.

Phase 1: One of our consultants will work with you in the comfort of your home to conduct a more thorough discussion and review of your personal safety concerns and questions. We document the discussion with notes and photos (if applicable). During this visit we break down why you have specific concerns and what aspects of your lifestyle might require the most attention or possible training and coaching.

Phase 2: The consultant will prepare a written recommendation of items you can do on your own to help you address your concerns, along with providing recommendations for any additional training or coaching that would make sense for your situation.

The consultant will then meet with you to go through these recommendations and answer any questions you may have.

Phase 1 is typically a 2-hour meeting

Phase 2 requires about 4-5 hours of the consultant's time.

The price for this package is $350.00

It's a small price to give you the peace of mind that comes with knowing you have taken the steps to address your personal safety concerns with the guidance of professionals.

Email: info@NobleMenSecurity.com